We are privileged to have Evan Lipson, MD present

The Side Effects of Immune Checkpoint Inhibitors

The immunotherapy of cancer is now widely in use, and the side effects of this treatment affect multiple organ systems and are completely different from those we see with traditional chemotherapy, so this talk is particularly current.

Dr. Lipson received his M.D. from The Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in N.Y., and was an intern and resident in Medicine, as well as a Fellow in Oncology, at Johns Hopkins University Hospital. He is currently an Associate Professor of Oncology at Johns Hopkins, and is an attending physician at Hopkins in Baltimore as well as at Sibley here in D.C. where he runs a weekly melanoma clinic. He is a nationally and internationally recognized expert in the immune therapy of cancers, particularly cutaneous, pulmonary and renal, as well as the management of drug toxicities of immunotherapy.
